Brief Description of the Care Economy

- The care economy entails the production and consumption of goods and services necessary for the physical, social, mental and emotional well-being of care-dependent groups, such as children, the elderly, the ill and people with disabilities, as well as healthy, prime working-age adults.
- Care work entails both paid and unpaid dimensions.
- Unpaid care - the person doing the activity does not receive a wage and that the work is not counted in GDP.
- Paid care - takes place in exchange for a salary
